Course Description:

From the beginning of its history, Russia has struggled to define itself both as a multi-ethnic empire and as a nation. In this class, we will follow Russia’s development, expansion and transformation from its earliest beginnings up to the period of the Great Reforms. How and why did Russia come to dominate a vast Eurasian space? How did Russia’s Tsars, Emperors and Empresses exert control over the diverse cultures, languages, religions and peoples that came under their influence? What role did national identity play in the relationship between the imperial center and its peripheries? In addition to exploring Russia’s imperial legacy, we will engage with the “accursed questions” of Russian history (“What is to be done?” “Who is to blame?”), placing them within the political and social framework from which they sprang and exploring the impact they had on the lives of real people living inside the Russian empire. Central themes will be political governance, both of the Russian interior and the borderlands, relations between Russian and non-Russian ethnic groups, questions of religious identity, social transformation and political governance.
Learning Goals:
By the end of this course, you will have developed the ability to:
1) Analyze a variety of primary materials (textual, visual, aural)
2) Identify key figures, concepts and themes in Russian history, and engage with important debates
3) Critically engage in discussion of historical problems with your peers in a productive and respectful manner
4) Synthesize course readings in analytical writing

Required Texts:
There are four assigned texts for this class: one primary source collection, one novel, one memoir, and one collection of scholarly microhistories. For those who desire additional background reading, there is also a suggested textbook with corresponding page numbers provided in the syllabus. All books are available for purchase in the bookstore and are also available on library reserve. Other assigned documents will be available on Blackboard and are listed in the syllabus according to week.

Serge Zenkovsky, ed., Medieval Russia's Epics, Chronicles and Tales (Meridian, 1974)
Norris, Stephen and Willard Sunderland. Russia’s People of Empire: Life Stories from Eurasia, 1500-Present (Indiana University Press, 2012), Abbreviation: RPE
Ivan Turgenev, Fathers and Sons (Oxford World’s Classics, 2008)

Suggested Textbook:
Nicholas Riasanovksy and Mark Steinberg, A History of Russia (Oxford University Press, 2004)

Grading Schema:
Quizzes (2): 10% each (total 20%, scheduled October 4, 2013 and November 6, 2013)
Each quiz will consist of a visual source and/or short answer (term identification). Study guides will be distributed one week in advance.
Microhistory (6-8 pages, due October 18, 2013 by 5pm): 20%
You will be responsible for writing a microhistory of Princess Dashkova, whose memoirs are assigned reading for the class. We will be reading and discussing various examples of microhistories in Norris and Sunderland, Russia’s People of Empire throughout the semester. Pay attention to these examples! Take note of what you find effective, and use these observations to help you craft your own microhistory.
Primary Source Journal: 20%
Each week you will select ONE primary source document out of those listed on the syllabus for that class session and write a BRIEF (300 word) critical analysis of the contents of the source in connection with the shared reading assignment for the week. You should be prepared to describe your source and your assessment of it in class. Each critical analysis should be printed out and included in a binder, which will be collected at several points over the course of the semester. By the end of the semester, you should have amassed a total of twelve (12) sources. As these sources will provide the basis for your final (historical) essay, you should select a general topic area of interest to you from the list appended to the syllabus (social relations, minorities, colonialism, imperialism, autocracy, etc.) and choose primary sources related to that topic. If you are having difficulty selecting a topic, please come and speak with me. Other individual topics may be approved by the instructor. All primary source documents are available on Blackboard or in assigned texts.

Final (Historical) Essay: 20% (8-10 pages, due December 17, 2013 at 4:00pm)
Your final project, based upon your primary source journal and assigned readings throughout the semester, will require you to assess the development of the Russian empire in relation to a theme of your own choosing (potential themes listed in the syllabus). Be sure to consider what role the unique multicultural aspect of the Russian empire played in the historical development of your chosen topic.

Participation and Discussion: 20%
This class depends heavily upon your participation and engagement. You should come to each class prepared to discuss assigned readings and/or primary sources. Most classes will involve a mix of lecture and discussion; those classes marked as “discussion” in the syllabus will be entirely based on class discussion of assigned reading. Be sure to bring a copy of the assigned texts to class so that you can ground your discussion in the actual document. I will assess BOTH attendance and active participation after each class session. Unexcused absences and failure to engage in discussion will both negatively affect your participation grade.

Late work will be penalized by a reduction of 1/3 of a letter grade per day late. Thus, an “A” paper received two days late will be downgraded to a “B+”. Be sure to look over the schedule and plan accordingly!

All course work must be received by December 17, 2013 at 4:00pm.

Attendance Policy:
Students are expected to attend and actively participate in all class sessions. As 20% of your final grade is based on participation and discussion, absence from class will negatively impact your performance.

Class Etiquette:
1) Be sure to turn off ALL cell phones prior to class – this is a sign of respect for myself, your colleagues, and the atmosphere of learning in the classroom.
2) Please do NOT surf the internet during class time. Laptop computers are useful tools for learning and note-taking, but must be used responsibly. Internet surfing distracts both yourself and your colleagues and hinders classroom discussion. Offenders will be requested not to bring their computers to future classes.
3) When you send me an email, be sure to use proper written etiquette (formal address, correct grammar, clearly stated question or comment). Remember that this is a formal written exchange and part of your scholarly persona!
4) This classroom is a space for respectful discussion of concepts, ideas and events. Everyone has the right to express their ideas, pose questions, and engage in productive conversation. While differences of opinion will certainly arise, it is our collective responsibility to create an open, respectful and cordial atmosphere.

Plagiarism and the Honor Code:
“The word plagiarism derives from Latin roots: plagiarius, an abductor, and plagiare, to steal. The expropriation of another author’s work and the presentation of it as one's own, constitutes plagiarism and is a serious violation of the ethics of scholarship.” [American Historical Association, Statement on Standards of Professional Conduct]. Presenting the work of others as one’s own goes against everything that a liberal education is about. It is a serious affront to the other students in the course, to me as a member of the course, and to the plagiariser him/herself. The College requires that students sign an “Honor Code” for all assignments. This pledge states: “I affirm that I have adhered to the Honor Code in this assignment.” For further information, see the student Honor Code which you can access via Blackboard>Lookup/Directories>Honor Code. If you have questions about what constitutes plagiarism please see me or raise it in class.

Students with Disabilities:
If you have specific physical, psychiatric or learning disabilities and require accommodations, please let me know early in the semester so that your learning needs may be appropriately met. You will need to provide documentation of your disability to the Office of Disability Services in Peters G-27/G-28.

Please Note: I reserve the right to change the syllabus over the course of the semester. Any changes that are introduced will be discussed in class at least one week prior to their implementation.
