COURSE DESCRIPTION
For many centuries, the peoples living on the rim of the Indian Ocean had established a vast maritime network that linked India, China, Southeast Asia, the Middle East and East Africa. The wealth and trade that crossed the Indian Ocean surpassed that of any other region. It was in the hope of accessing this commercial zone that Europeans embarked on voyages of ‘discovery.’ We will study select cultures and societies brought into contact through interregional migration and travel across the Indian Ocean over a broad arc of history. Different kinds of people – nobles, merchants, soldiers, statesmen, sailors, scholars, slaves – experienced mobility in different ways. What kinds of cooperation, accommodation, or conflict did different Indian Ocean encounters engender? Using various different primary sources, we look at particular case studies and their broader social and cultural contexts. At the heart of the course is attention to the ways in which primary sources provide access to the historical meanings of their contexts of production. Close reading will be an important aspect of both class discussions and writing assignments.

The goal of the course is for students to gain a basic sense of how the Indian Ocean was interconnected from medieval to modern times. We begin in the medieval period to get a firm sense of what the Indian Ocean was like before the arrival of Europeans. In the early sixteenth century, the rise of early modern land-based empires across Asia, on the one hand, and the arrival of European maritime powers, on the other, globalized and politicized the Indian Ocean in new ways. We consider how these changes impacted the societies and cultures of the Ocean. The dominance of European empire from the end of the 18th century enabled new modes of travel, types of encounters and textual representations.

Rather than a comprehensive overview, this course provides a general set of conceptual and analytic tools for examining societies and cultures across temporal and spatial bounds, through the specific lens of particular texts and contexts. Texts and readings will draw upon recent secondary research as well as historical and literary primary source materials.

ASSIGNMENTS AND GRADE BREAKDOWN

You will be expected to complete the reading assigned for each class on, or before, the day that it is listed on the syllabus. Completing the reading means that you have not only literally read the assignment, but that you have spent time putting together your thoughts and questions about the texts and how all of these relate to the themes of the course. The participation portion of your final grade will take in to account your attendance and active participation in class. The * denotes optional reading. Asterisk readings may prove useful for your final paper.

15% Short paper (900-1000 words, 4 pages)
20% Open book take-home midterm exam (4 pages)
15% Final paper topic proposal (2 pages)
30% Final paper (2200-2800 words, 8-10 pages)
20% Class participation

GRADE SYSTEM

The grading is as follows: A+ 100-97; A 96-93; A- 92-90; B+ 89-87; B 86-83; B- 82-80; C+ 79-77; C 76-73; C- 72-70; D 65-69, F below 65.

PARTICIPATION: CLASS DISCUSSION

Active class participation means that you are not just physically present, but that you are mentally engaged in class. Students are expected to attend all classes; complete all reading; and participate in discussion (please always bring texts to class and be prepared to reference them). To prepare for class discussions, students should mark passages in readings that excite, inspire, disturb, or puzzle so that they can ask questions, articulate confusions and to engage in lively but open-minded and respectful debate. Quality of participation is more important than quantity.
PAPERS / FINAL ESSAY
Essays should be double-spaced, in Times New Roman 12-point font, with 1” margins and page numbers and must be submitted in hard copy. All writing assignments must adhere to word limits. The purpose of these limits is for students to learn to formulate appropriate answers to a given question with concise arguments and economical use of prose. Points will be taken off for not following this format.

You will be evaluated based on your grasp of the readings in this course. You must use the Chicago-MLA style of citation for either in-text citations or footnotes. A citation guide is here: http://owl.english.purdue.edu/owl/resource/747/02/ Wikipedia will not be accepted as a source citation, and points will be taken off, if it is used. For additional writing guidelines, you may also seek the assistance of Oberlin’s Writing Center: http://new.oberlin.edu/arts-and-sciences/departments/rhetoric/writing-associates-program/writing-center.dot

For your short paper, you must choose a topic that we have covered in the course from September 5-September 25, and write a response paper. For your mid-term, I will be handing out a question and you will be required to submit a response to the question of up to 3 pages. For your final paper, you must choose a topic we have covered in the course from November 5-December 5. You must submit your final paper topic proposal, with thesis statement by November 26, before Thanksgiving. Your paper proposal is a pass/fail assignment, and it will negatively affect your grade if it is not handed in on time.

I only accept paper copies (NO electronic submissions) of your work unless otherwise stated. Please bring a printed, stapled copy of your paper to class to turn in. I will not read papers that are not stapled, or that do not have a name. Drop off your papers in class or in the box next to my office door in the History Department (room 314) by 5:00pm. There will be a penalty for papers handed in via e-mail unless otherwise stated.

POWER POINT LECTURES
I will not be posting the power-point presentations online regularly. If you miss class, be sure to obtain the relevant lecture notes from a classmate, or come see me during office hours. It is your responsibility to come to class regularly, do the readings, and take notes on the material.

SOURCES
We will be using several primary sources in this class. What is a primary source? Here is a useful definition: http://www.yale.edu/collections_collaborative/primarysources/primarysources.html. While reading works by historians and others, it is often useful to ask, ‘What sources is the author using?’, ‘How does a narrative change depending upon the sources used?’

IN-CLASS GUIDELINES: Please…
Switch off all cell phones for the duration of the class
Laptop / Tablets / I-Pads Policy: No.
Avoid eating or sleeping in class.
Do not saunter in late or leave early without speaking/e-mailing me beforehand.
ATTENDANCE and EXTENSION POLICY
You will be expected to attend class regularly. Attending class regularly will go a long way in being able to earn an A in this course. If you are absent for three or more class days in a row without a reasonable explanation presented before your absences, your class dean will be contacted before appropriate action is taken. In the event of illness or family emergency, please let me know via e-mail. If you need an extension, you must e-mail me at least 36 hours prior to the due-date of the paper. Students will not be granted more than two extensions per semester. If an extension is granted and the paper is not handed in by the agreed upon deadline, the paper will receive an F. Barring extensions, all assignments must be handed in on the date they are due by 5pm that day. Assignments turned in after class will be considered late. The grades for all assignments turned in late will be reduced by a 1/3 of a letter grade (ie. an A to an A-) for each day that they are late.

RE-DOING ASSIGNMENTS / REVISIONS
I have a no revisions policy. If you wish to discuss a draft of the paper, you are welcome to discuss it with me in my office hours prior to submission. In the rare event that I do allow re-writes, do note that I have higher expectations the second time around: so, you may wind up with a lower grade if the re-written paper is not up to par.

INSTRUCTOR AVAILABILITY
In addition to my office hours, I am available via e-mail for any questions you may have related to the course. If you cannot make my office hours, please e-mail me to schedule an appointment. Please note: I do not respond to e-mails sent after 6pm M-F, until the middle of the next day, and typically do not respond to e-mails over the weekend.

OFFICE OF DISABILITY SERVICES
Appropriate accommodations will always be granted to students with documented disabilities. If you have a documented disability please see me early in the semester. Any additional questions should be addressed to Jane Boomer, Coordinator of Disability Services: http://new.oberlin.edu/office/disability-services/

HONOR CODE AND PLAGIARISM
The Honor Code applies to all assignments in this course. This means that any student found cheating, plagiarizing, turning in another person’s work as his/her own or otherwise violating the instructor’s instructions will be subject to a hearing before the Student Honor Committee. See the Rules and Regulations Section VI A and B in the Student Handbook. If you have any doubt about citations, see the guidelines here: http://new.oberlin.edu/arts-and-sciences/departments/gender/writing-research/citations.dot

GRADE APPEALS
You are always welcome to discuss a paper, but if you want the grade reconsidered, you must first submit a four-paragraph written appeal in which you evaluate your paper in each of the four criteria: thesis, organization, evidence, and style. Remember that a grade does not reflect process (it does not measure whether you worked hard) and it certainly does not reflect a value judgment about you as a person. A grade constitutes an evaluation of the quality and analytical rigor of the thesis, organization, evidence, and style of a single piece of work, so ensure that your written appeal addresses your finished paper in terms of those criteria rather than time and effort expended on it. Appeals must be submitted in hard copy no later than one week after graded papers are returned in class.

READINGS AVAILABLE ON BLACKBOARD

Unless otherwise indicated, all the readings for this course will be from the books or from Blackboard. The Blackboard readings will be available in the subheading, Course Documents, on the left-hand bar of the screen. Make sure you register for the course.
